Cookie Policy

We use cookies to support essential website functions and provide an improved user experience. Cookies help maintain your login session, enable course access, load content efficiently and store preferences.

Types of cookies we use include: Necessary cookies for security and login; Analytics cookies to understand learner behaviour and improve content; Preference cookies to remember your settings.

Analytics allows us to improve course layout, identify issues and optimise the training experience.

You may manage cookies at any time via your browser. Rejecting non-essential cookies will not affect course access.
